19 N. E. Mills Tied by Strike

Nineteen New England cotton textile plants were shut down and 16,500 workers were idle today in a wave of strikes called the most serious to hit the industry in more than a decade. The walkouts, which began at midnight, paralyzed textile production in Maine, New Hampshire and Connecticut. Hit by the work stoppages were mills in Lewiston, Augusta, Biddeford and Saco, Me.; Putnam, Jewett City and Taftville, Ct., and Nashua, N. H.

Deadly Loot

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 2 (AP)—Some of the natives on Okinawa are learning the hard way it doesn't pay to steal from the U. S. Army, an Omaha Army physician relates.

In a letter to friends here, the physician said some of the natives landed in a hospital because the "baking powder" they stole was DDT insecticide.

A short-lived "holiday" by 1200 brewery workers in Boston was ended this afternoon when the strikers accepted a compromise offer of a weekly pay boost of $7 and a $75 bonus, retroactive to Sept. 29.

The federal government renewed conciliatory efforts to end the two-day strike of 4000 Greyhound Bus Line workers, 400 of them in Boston and New England. Howard Colvin of the conciliation service said he was trying to bring workers and employers into conference.

At Holyoke 125 welders and maintenance workers refused to cross picket lines at the Worthington Pump and Machinery Corp. plant, strike-bound in a wage dispute involving 700 other employees.

In Hartford, J. W. Bryan, president of Local 47, Commercial Telegraphers' Union, AFL, announced the local would stage of five-hour stoppage from 1 to 6 p. m. today in protest against a Regional Labor Board award to pay increases to CIO-organized telegraphers in the New York area.

The CIO textile strikes all began peacefully, with the Textile Workers' Union of America attempting picketing immediately only in Augusta, Me.

Company guards at three Lewiston mills, the Hill, Bates and Androscooggin plants, reported only 36 of 360 midnight workers reported, and Biddeford police said none of 300 late shift workers entered the big Pepperell mill there.

While the strike in the Maine mills was called over a breakdown in negotiations for a union shop, pay increases and other benefits, the walkout in Nashua, N. H., was over the sole issue of a closed shop.

Walter Whipple, company vice president, announced:

"We have committed ourselves to wage increases that will cost us $1,000,000 a year, but we will not agree to fire any employee who does not want to belong to a union."

In Connecticut, nearly 2500 CIO-organized textile workers were out, also in protest against management refusal to agree to a closed shop clause in a new union contract.

Telegraph Operators In 5 Cities Walk Out

DETROIT, Nov. 2 (INS)—Western Union operators in at least five cities walked out at 1 p. m. today to attend a five-hour protest meeting in support of a 28 per cent wage increase demand. Members of Detroit Local 11, AFL Commercial Telegraphers Union, said simultaneous walkouts were staged in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Hartford.

STATE REPORT DELAYED—Report on the State employees' reclassification survey, expected to be made public today, will not be available until Nov. 6, due to printing difficulties.

Gort Quits Palestine Post, 250 Shot in Cairo

By HENRY B. JAMESON

LONDON, Nov. 2 (AP)—Field Marshal Lord Gort, commissioner of Palestine as the British government laid the resigned today as high commander for terrorism there on Jewish elements. Colonel Scott, retired George Hall described the most widespread and highly organized sabotage in the history of the country as a "dastardly series of outrages" resulting from "very careful planning by a very considerable organization among Jewish communities."

In nearby Egypt, anti-Zionist elements started a general strike in Cairo on this anniversary of the Balfour declaration, demanding Jews be awakened "from their dream of a home in Palestine." Street fighting broke out. Police fired in the air attempting to disperse crowds.

(An International News Service dispatch from Cairo said 250 to 300 persons were wounded by gunfire, including a number of policemen. The violence took many forms, the dispatch said, with rioters in the Muski district pouring acids from rooftops.

The demonstrators also vented their fury in attacks against Greek Orthodox and Armenian Catholic worshippers. Throng which crashed into synagogues burned Jewish holy books.

Demonstrators went through the bazaar, breaking windows and looting Jewish shops. The largest Jewish department store in Cairo was set afire.

At Azhar palace several mounted police were knocked from horses in an hour long battle. Police fired into the mob.

Arab sections of Palestine also started a general strike against the Balfour declaration and Zionist aims. Arab shops closed and prayers were called in the mosques.

Hall told Commons Lord Gort resigned because he was ill. J. V. W. Shaw, chief secretary, will administer Palestine until a successor is named.

Hall expressed regret "There would be this wanton resort to force while the British were examining means to solve the Jewish-Arab problem."

3 Higgins Plants For Sale to Union

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 2 (AP)—Andrew J. Higgins, who shut down his three Higgins Industries, Inc., plants here yesterday during an AFL union walkout, proposed today the unions purchase the closed plants and operate them.

"There'll be no more Higgins Industries, Inc. in the manufacturing business in New Orleans," Higgins asserted when he closed the plants. "Higgins Industries, Inc. is being liquidated but not Higgins himself." Higgins, whose four sons are associated with him in business, said his firm here held contracts for $40,000,000 for pleasure craft and other things and expected to employ 30,000.

Pearl Harbor Probe Set to Open Nov. 15

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (INS)—The Pearl Harbor investigating committee decided today to open public hearings Nov. 15 and to ask President Truman to permit any government employee to "volunteer" information.

Senator Barkley, chairman, announced the 10-man committee refused, 5 to 3, to ask Mr. Truman to modify his executive order so committee members might check official records with committee authorization. The committee also adopted a nine-point program to govern hearings.

Ex-Marine Veteran Disappears From College Dormitory

Emerson Girl Student Missing

Attractive, blonde Virginia E. Haddix, 21, Emerson College freshman and a medically discharged veteran of the women Marines, walked from her college dormitory last night and disappeared, police disclosed today.

The young woman, daughter of Atty. and Mrs. Howard Haddix of Lake Odessa, Mich., was reported missing by Mrs. Grace P. Andrews, house mother of the Commonwealth ave. dormitory, shortly after her absence first was discovered by her roommate, Alice Lee Mathis, 20, of Wyalusing, Pa.

Miss Mathis, a junior, said they had both spent the evening studying and that suddenly the Haddix girl had burst into tears. It was about 9 p. m.

"She said, 'I'm going to take a bath, that usually helps to make things better,'" Miss Mathis related. "I continued my studies for about a half hour and then went to the bathroom but she was gone."

Mother Tells Love For Son She Killed

A graying, pale little woman in worn clothes, accompanied by police six-footers with unusually sombre faces, walked dazedly into municipal court today after a sleepless night in a cell, and tried to understand she was to be tried as the murderess of her 12-year-old son.

She was not placed in the prisoners' dock but was given a chair near it. Police asked Judge Zottoli for a continuance. The clerk turned to her and asked, "Have you any objections?" She stared blankly for several seconds, then shook her head and whispered, "No." The case was continued to Nov. 8. The woman, held without bail, was led away, her eyes almost closed, as though she walked in a nightmare.

She was Mrs. Gertrude Apidianakis, 48, of Massachusetts ave., who yesterday faltered into the Back Bay police station and sobbed: "I just shot my boy. I was afraid the cops was going to give him to my husband. I couldn't stand having him taken from me. My son, my boy! He is dead. Here is the gun. Go get him and God help us all!"

Back in her tiny apartment, lying in a pool of the blood he had inherited from her, lay Earle Apidianakis, dead at 12, the victim, according to his mother's tearful outburst to the police, of her fear that the law would give him to her estranged husband.

In court, as the mother made her way through quiet spectators, was the man to whom she would not relinquish their child, Michael Apidianakis, 49, waiter in a Boston hotel and father of the slain boy.

As a climax to a series of lawsuits over the custody of the child, the father had had him for the last five weeks at an apartment in Tremont st.

There was no doubt that Earle Apidianakis loved the mother who was to blast away his life in a frenzy of maternal emotion gone wrong. He liked to draw and to letter Christmas cards. Only lately he made a few especially for her. One, in crayon and ink, must be destined to bring tears to her eyes this Christmas. It read:

"May the light of the Christ Star illumine Your pathway with Happiness at Christmas and All through the New Year." At the bottom was, "To Mother From Earle."

There was another, reading: "Merry Christmas, Dear Mother with Joy and Cheer, Too. There's No other friend Like You."

And there was a third which went:

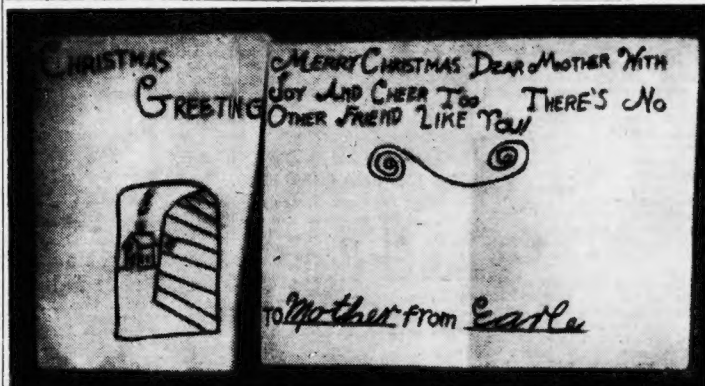

"Open up the door And let in my cheer And let happiness And joy follow you Throughout the whole New Year."

Earle Apidianakis had known more unhappiness during his 12 years on earth than most humans know in a full lifetime. June 30, 1943, his father sued for divorce, charging cruel and abusive treatment. Soon afterward, Mrs. Apidianakis entered a counter-suit.

SYMBOL—This Christmas card, and many others, symbolize for Mrs. Gertrude Apidianakis the love her son bore her. Today she stands, heartbroken, arraigned for fatally shooting the boy, Earle, 12, whom she sought to shield from the cruelties of the world. She feared the boy's father would take the lad away from her by court action, she said, and she could not bear the thought of parting with him because she could not provide the things he needed.

Sailor Wins His Love Ring Back

CPO Nicholas Taddeo, 52, a veteran of nearly 35 years of naval service, is going to get back the $1000 diamond ring he gave Miss Alice E. Nelson of Longdale st., Dorchester.

SAVED FROM FLAMES—None the worse for wear after being thrown from the flaming second floor of his Michigan ave., Mattapan, home, 8-year-old Albert Kripke rests comfortably and thanks his father, Sydney, who saved him.

INS by Joseph Fendell

Judge Harold P. Williams, in a finding on the sailor's bill in equity in Suffolk Superior Court, ruled today the ring was an engagement ring and issued an order that Miss Nelson return it forthwith.

"I rule that the gift of the ring was conditional on the defendant's performing her part of the contract—to marry the plaintiff—and that the plaintiff therefore is entitled to have the ring returned."

In the hearing of the suit last September Taddeo testified he gave Miss Nelson the ring Dec. 30, 1942, when they became engaged and that she broke the engagement early this year, refusing to return the ring.

Miss Nelson denied the ring was an engagement ring and testified she had accepted it with the condition it was merely a token of their friendship.

Metal Toys Higher But Less Than Wood

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP)—Metal toys (if you can get them) will cost at least 15 per cent more this Christmas than in 1941. OPA announced this today in reporting manufacturers have been granted a 14 per cent ceiling increase.

At higher prices, however, metal toys will cost less than similar toys of wood.

Halt 3570 Drivers, 30 Cars Condemned

Motor Vehicle Registrar King announced today 3570 motorists had been halted throughout the State yesterday in the opening day of the registry's drive against auto owners failing to display official inspection stickers.

King said equipment on 30 to 40 of the cars was so bad, plates were removed immediately by inspectors and the autos towed off the road. Owners were given three days to have the equipment repaired.

The total of cars halted represents an increase of 1060 over the number stopped on the opening day of the drive last year.

King said 2000 of the total had been halted in the Boston-Cambridge area, a decrease of 28 from those halted in those cities in last year's drive on the first day.

Slight decreases in the number of machines stopped also were noted in Quincy, Lowell, Lawrence and Worcester.

Areas where there were increases in the number of cars stopped by inspectors and police included Lynn, Framingham, Brookline, Fall River, New Bedford, Haverhill, Fitchburg, Springfield, Holyoke, Northampton and Pittsfield.

King said the majority of autoists halted yesterday and during the rest of the drive would be forced to go to court and pay $5 fines.

Arlington Firemen Offer Blood to Pal

Comrade from Arlington central fire station today offered their blood at Symmes Arlington Hospital in the fight to save the life of Edward Ryan, 41, of Lewis st., Arlington, one of seven firemen injured while battling the Kelly garage blaze last Saturday.

Northampton High's 'Vandal Gang' Busted

NORTHAMPTON, Nov. 2 (AP)—Police disclosed today they had broken up a band of high school students which had as their "sworn duty" the creation of "a new era of vandalism which will terrorize the people of Northampton" and of "overpowering the police."

Sgt. John J. O'Donnell said the boys, numbering about 90, had organized "The Syndicate" under the leadership of a youth who held the title of "The Boss."

The gang, he said, had planned to start their hoodlum tactics on Halloween but some of the leaders "lost their nerve at the last minute." He added that police had seized some records of the gang, giving the names of most of the members.

In addition to "The Boss" as leader, the gang had, as other officers "The Clan" (vice-president), "The Clan" (secretary), and "The Torturer" (treasurer).

O'Donnell displayed a printed copy of the "oath" which was taken by the gang members.

It read: "I hereby swear I will aid the cause of The Syndicate in their work to try to overcome the police of this city and start an era of vandalism which will terrorize the people of Northampton. I will be loyal and shall try to obey every command that my master makes."

O'Donnell said the police considered the organization as "not just a prank" and that it apparently had been created after some study.

Higher Rents O. K. For New Housing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (INS)—OPA Administrator Bowles today announced a liberalized rent-control policy permitting higher rents for new housing.

Bowles explained maximum rents for comparable accommodations.

In addition, they will include a "substantial allowance" to offset higher construction costs.

British Labor Wins In Local Elections

LONDON, Nov. 2 (AP)—Britain's Labor Party tightened control of the nation today as returns in yesterday's local elections—first since 1938—gave Laborite municipal councilors throughout England Wales a majority over Conservatives of approximately two to one.

Heir, 3, Vanishes; Kidnaping Feared

DOWNIEVILLE, Cal., Nov. 2 (INS)—A widespread search was under way in the rugged Sierra county hills today for 3-year-old Dickie Tum Suden, scion of a wealthy San Francisco bay family.

MILDRED I. SPENCER Wins $10,000 Suit

The child vanished between 9 and 10 a. m. yesterday while playing in the yard at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tum Suden at Goodyear's Bar, four miles from Downieville.

His maternal grandfather, Alfred L. Merritt of Berkeley, operates the Brush Creek gold mine at Goodyear's Bar.

His paternal grandfather, Richard Tum Suden, is a noted San Francisco attorney.

Possibility the boy may have been kidnaped was being investigated, according to the sheriff's office, although no ransom note was found.

Virtually the entire town of 450 population joined in a night-long search led by Sheriff W. D. Johnson. Only clue so far found was one of the child's mittens found a short distance from his home.

Goodyear creek, which runs near the child's home, was being searched foot-by-foot.

The boy's father, who is connected with the Brush Creek mine, and his mother were among the searchers.

TOKYO, Nov. 2 (INS)—Commander G. O. "Scappy" Keating, commander of Yokosuka naval base, pressed his campaign against fraternization with the Japs today by posting, in all buildings at the base, large photographs of an emaciated American prisoner.

Ex-WAVE Wins $10,000 Auto Suit

After an hour of deliberation today, a Suffolk superior court jury awarded Mrs. Mildred I. Spencer of Brainard rd., Allston, an attractive former WAVE, the $30,000 she sought in her damage suit against Samuel Rosenthal of Commonwealth ave., Brighton.

Mrs. Spencer, whose soldier husband is expected home from overseas next week, said she had suffered permanent disability from a skull fracture as a result of being struck by Rosenthal's auto on Oct. 24, 1943, at Harvard and Commonwealth aves, Allston.

She charged that a year later she was discharged from the WAVES because of disability resulting from the accident.

2000 GIs Home, Get Jive Treat

The port's welcoming band swung out with music loud and hot, sweet and low, today in greeting nearly 2000 soldiers arriving at Commonwealth Pier aboard the S. S. Lancia Victory.

Jive at its best blared forth after three days of dirges ordered, according to the musicians, by a "certain brass band" who thought hot music undignified. The returnees cheered the change loudly.

Greater Boston boys aboard the Lancia Victory included PFC John Orio, Washburn ave., Revere; PFC George van Hein, Poplar st., Chelsea, and PFC Raymond Tedeschi, Newton. Also arriving here was the Jonathan Edwards, that departed 650 at the Army Base, and the China Mail, which brought 21 others to the Mystic Docks, Charlestown.

Lynn Judge Aids Accused Wife Killer

On the friendly advice of Judge Ralph W. Reeve, PFC Clarence Carr, 33, of Ft. Dawes, today agreed in Lynn district court to accept a lawyer for his coming trial on the charge of murdering his wife, Rebecca, 23, killed by a rifle bullet in her Chancery st., Lynn, rooming house.

Previously, Carr stated he wanted no lawyer and hoped to die in the electric chair.

Wife No. 1 Is Freed From Army Romeo

Life was just a round of honeymoons for T-Sgt. Dale Urban of Fairport, O., according to testimony that won a divorce in Suffolk Superior Court today for Mrs. Grace Louise Urban, Weeks ave., Roslindale.

GRACE LOUISE URBAN

Mrs. Urban, an attractive brunette, told Judge Wilson she married her Army Romeo July 13, 1942, and he left Boston immediately after their two-week honeymoon, never to see her again.

But records at Fairport showed less than a month later, Aug. 12, he married a home-town sweetheart, Margaret C. Yager. He now is overseas.

It was the petitioner's mother, Mrs. Sophie Maichle, who found out about her 21-year-old son-in-law by writing to Fairport authorities. Soon the two wives became firm friends and constant correspondents. It was testified the second Mrs. Urban got an annulment.

Judge Wilson granted the divorce on grounds of adultery and complimented Mrs. Maichle for good detective work.

At the same session Evelyn Maroney of Washington st., South End, was granted a divorce from Carl Maroney for desertion. They have one child.

Also given her freedom on grounds of desertion was Mrs. Mabel Johnston, 55, Burbank st., Back Bay, who found the 13th day of the month most unlucky. She said she married Charles Johnston, 51, March 13, 1940, and that from the following July 13 to May 13, 1942, they fought frequently. She said she berated him about his conduct on the latter date and he walked out forever.

Lt. Helen M. Cassiani of Bridgewater, 28-year-old Army nurse who was liberated by Rangers last February after more than three years in the Jap prison camp, Santo Tomas, the Philippines, will be married tomorrow at a ceremony reuniting nurses, chaplains and missionaries who shared her fate.

Father Renews Custody Fight For Daughter, 8

Edward J. Stinson of Chase st., Dorchester, today reopened in Middlesex probate court his two-year legal fight to obtain custody of his 8-year-old daughter Mary, with a petition seeking to have the child taken from the care of her maternal aunt.

Stinson's previous petition was dismissed in 1943 by Judge John C. Leggat, who awarded the child to Mrs. Meegan of Stevens st., Stoneham. His decision was reversed by the Supreme court last June and a new hearing ordered.

Dr. Brainerd Conley of Cable Memorial Hospital, Ipswich, testified Mary could make the shift without any harmful effects.

Dr. A. Warren Stearns, Boston psychiatrist, appearing in behalf of Mrs. Meegan, who opposed the petition, said the "transfer would be deleterious to the child's health." He said Mary regarded Mr. and Mrs. Meegan as "mama" and "papa."

The child's mother died at Mary's birth in 1937 and the girl has lived with the Meegans since she was one month old.

Stinson told Judge George M. Pollard he was married again and wanted Mary to join her older brother and sister and his two stepchildren.

His petition was taken under advisement.

British Dock Strikers Vote to Return

LONDON, Nov. 2 (AP)—Thousands of striking dock workers in five British ports voted today to accept a union recommendation to end the five-week work stoppage.

The back-to-work movement was reported to be spreading throughout the nation. Idle stevedores at Liverpool, London, Hull, Preston and Tilbury voted to end the walkout.

Brother in Their Bed to Halt Fists

SALEM, Nov. 2—The reason she insisted her 23-year-old brother should sleep between her and her husband was that her husband was wont to throw punches at her under the bedclothes and she wanted a buffer.

Mrs. Marie Angeheart, 33, of Eaton ter., Worcester, testified in probate court today.

She is asking a divorce from Joseph N. Angeheart of Leach st., Salem, charging cruelty. She identified her brother as Henry Briebeau of Worcester.

Henry, it was brought out, lived with the couple until they became estranged, but had a bedroom of his own. Mrs. Angeheart told Judge John V. Phelan she got him to sleep in the marital bed to block her husband's fistic attacks. He not only used to hit her, she said, but twisted her wrists.

Her husband, on the other hand, said the brother slept with them for a different reason entirely. He said there were bedbugs in Henry's room and he merely had fled them. The case is continuing.

BODY IN CHICOPEE RIVER

CHICOPEE, Nov. 2 (AP)—The body of Anthony Malvezzi, 73, of Springfield, reported missing on Oct. 28, was found in the Chicopee river today. Medical Examiner Lorenzo A. Remy said there was no evidence of foul play.

She is to wed Capt. Edward Nestor, 27, of Farm rd., Belmont, a veteran of 32 months in the European theater, whom she met in California on her long homeward journey. He is a graduate of Harvard, '40, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Nestor.

Maj. John J. Dugan, S. J., the heroic chaplain from Milton, who was rescued from the Cabanatuan prison camp on Luzon, will be one of the reunion company. With him will be Maj. Albot D. Talbot, Catholic chaplain, who was confined in Santo Tomas, was flying here today to officiate.

The nuptial mass will be celebrated at St. Thomas Aquinas Church, Bridgewater, at 10 o'clock. The Rev. Henry Carr, Pennsylvania missionary, who was confined in Santo Tomas, was flying here today to officiate.

A number of the Army nurses who were freed in the same raid that liberated Lt. Cassiani will be present at the wedding, which will be a military double-ring ceremony. One, Lt. Phyllis Arnold of New York, will be bridesmaid. Another will be Lt. Rita Palmer of Hampton, N. H.

Thomas F. Nestor of Belmont, the bridegroom's brother, a veteran of the fighting in Italy, will be best man.

Lt. Cassiani will be given away by her brother, Charles Cassiani.

Both the bride and bridegroom, on terminal leave from their respective services, will be automatically discharged Jan. 1.

Following their marriage a wedding breakfast will be held at the Toll House, Whitman.

Court Restrains Boy From Trespassing

Six-year-old Billy Stahler, son of Patrolman and Mrs. William Stahler of Woodward rd., West Roxbury, will roam no more on the property of his neighbors.

Judge Harold P. Williams today ordered his parents to restrain the boy from trespassing on the property of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Collins. The ruling came in a final decree on the latter's bill in equity.

18 Inactive Navy Craft to Berth Here

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP)—Berthing ports for 2080 ships of the fleet to be kept in inactive status were announced today by the Navy.

At the Navy Yard Annex in South Boston will be one battleship, 15 escort aircraft carriers and two big harbor tugs.

HOMELESS YET PITCHES PUP TENT IN PARK—Unable to find a place to live, David Mizrahi, discharged several days ago from the Marine Corps, threw up a pup tent in downtown Pershing sq., Los Angeles, Cal., and moved in with his wife, Sophie, and their 2-year-old son, Bobby. "This is better ground than I've been used to," he said. "It doesn't have any shell holes in it." Later they were obliged to move on orders of the city fathers.

Yamashita Quails Before Victim's Mother

By PAT ROBINSON
MANILA, Nov. 2 (INS)—An attempt by a bereaved Chinese mother to come to grips with Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita caused a sensation in the courtroom today at the war crimes trial of the former Jap Philippine commander. The Jap general himself obviously was moved for the first time by the stories of disgusting Jap atrocities, which included rapes, murders and the burning of more than 1000 Filipinos trapped in a building by the Japs.

When the frail Chinese mother, Mrs. Ang Be, struggled with officers in her attempt to get at Yamashita and shouted "He must die!" the former Jap Philippine commander nervously jerked up his head and opened wide his porcine eyes.

The Chinese woman gave no hint of her later outburst as she calmly told through an interpreter how her husband and two sons and three other persons were butchered by the Japs while she stood helpless.

The first witness told of the machine-gunning of more than 100 men, women and children at the Price home in Manila.

Then Francisco Lopez, MGM representative in Manila, bitterly told an hour-long story of the burning alive of more than 1000 victims who had been locked in the German Club.

Lopez told how his mother, brother, sister and other relatives were burned alive in the raging inferno at the German club and how a younger brother was shot through the heart when he tried to flee the building.

Lopez himself was shot and his clothes set afire but he managed to save himself by feigning death until nightfall when he crawled into a nearby air raid shelter.

He said three young girls at the German Club were raped and then bayoneted. Then, according to the testimony, the Japs poured gasoline on their victims' heads and set them afire while they were still alive.

Curb 15 Jap Monopolies

TOKYO, Nov. 2 (AP)—Japan's 15 greatest industrial and financial empires were barred today from all stock transactions until the economic control section of Allied headquarters makes up its mind what to do about the Zaibatsu.

Col. Raymond O. Kramer, chief of the economic section, explained without the freeze order the great family monopolies could easily so change their corporate structure as to defeat efforts to dissolve the trusts.

The firms affected included the great houses of Mitsui, Mitsubishi, Sumitomo and Asano.

Whirlwind Mayoral Windup

All six candidates for Mayor of Boston today announced plans for whirlwind wind-ups of their campaigns with a series of afternoon and evening rallies and radio addresses this weekend in a drive to line up all possible votes for Tuesday's election.

CURLEY

Cong. James M. Curley's headquarters scheduled Sunday afternoon and evening rallies in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler. Curley will close his campaign Monday night at Symphony Hall.

The Sunday afternoon meeting will be for women campaign workers and the evening activities will be turned over to the veterans' division of the organization headed by Edward J. McCormack of South Boston, brother of Cong. John W. McCormack.

We'll have more World War II veterans urging the election of Curley than ever have been assembled in one spot in Boston," Director McCormack said.

"We old timers of World War I feel we belong in the background with so many thousands of discharged and wounded veterans clamoring for the privilege of talking for Curley.

"They are the boys who won the last war, and our cavalcade of veterans will show Boston where the veterans stand in this campaign."

KERRIGAN

The Republican League of Ward 4, headed by Back Bay's Sen. Charles J. Innes, and Rep. Patrick Gilbert Sullivan of Ward 17, Dorchester, today endorsed the candidacy of Mayor Kerrigan, his headquarters announced.

In a radio address, Mayor Kerrigan claimed the support of organized labor and acknowledged the support of the heads of the Telephone Operators' Union, and the Street Carmen's Union, Local 589.

Kerrigan told several veterans' organizations supporting him that he represented the challenge of youth which Curley is attempting to discredit.

The Women's Non Partisan Committee scheduled a tea in honor of the Mayor and his mother, Mrs. Annie Kerrigan, in the Women's City Club, 40 Beacon st., from 5 to 7 p. m. today.

REILLY

Scheduled as guest of honor at a Hotel Statler luncheon of business and professional men, former Fire Commr. Reilly said Boston's chance to win a rightful share of postwar business will be lost forever unless voters elect a mayor in whom business and industrial leaders have confidence.

Reilly headquarters announced that a number of persons who had been backing other candidates, had switched to the Reilly camp, convinced the fight is now between Reilly and Curley.

"I welcome their support," Reilly declared. "The issue now is whether we are to endure four more years of Curleyism at a time when the city can ill afford such a setback."

LEE

Asserting that the race for mayor had narrowed down to Lee against the machine politicians, Candidate Joseph Lee said political gossips claim Curley has a machine that can't lose. Kerrigan has "built a powerful machine," and Reilly has "a double-barrelled machine."

"I campaign as a public-spirited citizen, without a machine of political self seekers," Lee said.

"I continue to believe that the citizens of Boston will cast their votes for a man as mayor, and not for a machine that has to be kept running on the fuel of thousands of dollars."

SAWTELLE

Speaking at rallies in various sections of the city, Governor's Councilor John J. Sawtelle said business men, civic leaders and average voters had acclaimed his 14-point program for efficient city management as the most logical approach to Boston's problems.

"It is a program which restores confidence in City Hall because it starts at the bottom to rebuild our city government on a firm, unshakable foundation," Sawtelle said.

FEENEY

Rep. Michael Paul Feeney announced that his program to reduce the tax rate to $33 would help Boston reach a population of 1,000,000.

The candidate proposes ridding the city of "the contracting gang"; giving war veterans permanent jobs in work now being done by contractors; building a free city college; and inducing new industries to locate in Boston.

Sister Kenny Sees Roz Russell in Costume Tests

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 2 (AP)—Sister Kenny nodded at Rosalind Russell and said, "that's the only actress in Hollywood who can play me on the screen."

It was the first day of work on "Sister Kenny," biography of the nurse who developed a treatment for infantile paralysis. Asked why she thought Miss Russell was the ideal portrayer, Sister Kenny said:

"In the first place she is not divorced. And I have always admired the sincerity of her work since I saw her in 'Craig's Wife.'"

She said Rosalind resembled her as a young woman—"although I was even thinner than she."

Sister Kenny was watching Roz make wardrobe tests for the picture, which is getting under way at last. Producer-Writer Dudley Nichols began planning it three years ago and the picture was postponed several times, amid considerable controversy. Finally he got the go-ahead from RKO and, after much wrestling with himself over terms, signed up Dudley Nichols to direct.

The famed nurse also gave approval of Alexander Knox, who is playing her mentor, Dr. Aeneas McDonald. "A remarkable likeness," she said. And added:

"It was Dr. McDonald, who years ago warned me of the trouble I would face. 'The medical profession is not kind to its reformers,' he said."

Crime in 1945 Soars Sharply

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP)—Criminal offenses jumped 10.3 per cent during the first nine months of 1945 compared with the same period of 1944, the FBI said today. Crimes in September increased 15.8 per cent compared with September, 1944.

From January through September, murder and non-negligent manslaughter increased 7.8 per cent, manslaughter by negligence 6.6 per cent, rape 7.8, robbery 17.5, aggravated assault 8.8, burglary 15.4, larceny 8.4 and automobile theft 14.2.

Conant Advises Against Hope to Outlaw Atom Bomb

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP)—President James B. Conant of Harvard advised today against pinning hopes on outlawing such terrible weapons as the atomic bomb.

For example, he said, poison gas was not used in World War II, "not because it was outlawed, but because it was not an effective weapon." The atomic bomb, he commented, is effective.

Dr. Conant, an eminent chemist, was a witness at the last day of public hearings by Senate military-commerce subcommittees on legislation to set up a national science foundation.

Sen. Fulbright (D.) of Arkansas asked Conant if it would take three or five years for other countries such as Russia to catch up with America in the field of atomic energy.

"I'd put the figure at 5 to 15 years," Conant replied. "It's a guessing game."

As Conant saw it, there are three lines of defense against the atomic bomb: (1) international arrangements; (2) military preparations and (3) basic research.

He said just as the atomic bomb is peculiarly the product of a highly industrial society, it is peculiarly adapted to the destruction of an industrial society.

This was in reply to an observation by Fulbright that discovery of the atomic bomb has had the effect of weakening this country, making it more vulnerable to sudden and destructive aggression.

"We're the least likely country to use it first," Fulbright remarked.

THE CANDY OF EXCELLENCE

Probate Clerk
Asks Divorce

More than once Mrs. Mary M. Mello, Northend st., Peabody, went to her duties as clerk in the Peabody District Court probate office with blackened eyes and swollen lips, she testified today before Judge Phelan in Salem Probate Court.

The decorations, she said, resulted from punching her husband, Manuel, from whom she sought an uncontested divorce, charging cruelty. She asked custody of two children.

Judge Phelan took the case under advisement.

In Triple Wedding

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 2 (AP)—A grandmother, mother and daughter—brides in a triple wedding—were honeymooning today.

Beverly Jean Hayes, 17; her mother, Mrs. Ruth M. McLean, 35; and her grandmother, Anna E. Haines, 52, were married to three Portland men before Stevenson, Wash., justice of the peace, Monday.

It was supposed to be a wedding for just young Beverly, the thing spread. The grandmother married Charles H. Smith, 49, and the mother, George Raymond, 34.

"We all went to Stevenson to see Beverly marry Melvin Hamman," explained Smith, "and when we saw how easy it was, we decided—the rest of us were engaged—to do it all at once."

"WEALTH COMES from industry and from the hard experience of human toil.

"To dissipate it in waste and extravagance is disloyalty to humanity. This is by no means a doctrine of parsimony.

"Both men and nations should live in accordance with their means and devote their substance not only to productive industry, but to the creation of the various forms of beauty and the pursuit of culture which give adornment to the art of life."

—CALVIN COOLIDGE.

MEDICINE AND TORTURE

ANYONE WHO has a trace of mercy or love in his heart, deploras "MAN'S INHUMANITY TO MAN."

The phrase has become trite, but none the less true, during these days of horror added to horror in the accounts of what human beings can do to other human beings.

But there is another phase of savage sadism that continues with unchecked or unproved ferocity, regardless of wars or world crises, and is wreaked by man under the pretext of scientific study upon his oldest, most faithful and blameless of friends—THE DOG.

VIVISECTION, THE "DISSECTION OF LIVING ANIMALS," ALWAYS A DEGRADING PRACTICE AND NEVER AN EFFICIENT METHOD OF STUDY, IS STILL CARRIED OUT, BY THE MOST BRUTAL MEANS, UPON 400,000 DOGS EVERY YEAR IN HOSPITALS, LABORATORIES AND SCHOOLS.

Every year men of science, men of knowledge and experience, men who uphold moral standards, revolt with disgust against the senseless butchery and expose the fallacies, the wrong conclusions, the bestiality and the insensate cruelty of vivisection.

Consequently, the notion that vivisection is necessary because it helps to save human lives HAS BEEN THOROUGHLY EXPLODED. Not by sentimentalists, but by physicians, surgeons and pathologists.

They have pointed out that the greatest medical progress owes nothing to vivisection; that what happens to a dog under torture is no indication of what may happen to a human being in disease; that once an experiment is concluded there is no necessity to repeat it endlessly; that cruel curiosity, psychopathic blood-lust, sadistic sensation, no matter under what pretext, vilify and destroy the moral core of man.

THEY HAVE STRESSED THE BASIC POINT THAT VIVISECTION AS A MEANS OF STUDY IS OBSOLETE, MISLEADING AND HARMFUL AND TOTALLY UNNECESSARY IN SCIENCE, PUTTING ASIDE ALL CONSIDERATIONS OF ETHICS OR SENTIMENT.

Nevertheless, vivisection continues and flourishes.

Students whose studies should be directed toward modern therapy are ordered, encouraged and applauded when they demonstrate that if certain parts of a dog's brain are removed the animal ceases to walk or see; or that interference with certain vital functions induces agony; or that, in brief, what was once clearly proved upon a canine victim some millions of dogs back, holds good today.

Fortunately, conscience and knowledge are coming to the rescue.

Fortunately, there are people, and groups of people, who are active in the defense of our animal wards and servants and friends.

Fortunately, the lust to torment, maim and kill on the pretense of "study" is being revealed in all its revolting details.

IT IS HIGH TIME INDEED THAT EITHER SCIENCE ITSELF, OR BETTER YET, THE LAW GET BUSY AND REMOVE THIS JAGGARD AND DEBASING SPECTACLE.

NOT ONLY FOR THE SAKE OF HELPLESS ANIMALS, BUT FOR THE SAKE OF TRUE SCIENCE.

The better selves of our nobler nature cannot much longer be affronted by pseudo-scientific barbarism.

BEFORE ME I have a program of the Saturday night fights at Sencio Memorial Boxing Stadium, Leyte, Philippine Islands. A U. S. Army sergeant sent it to me. He says there appears to be some very promising ring material among the Filipinos and that a smart fight manager might dig up another Cefirino Garcia or Speedy Dado on the island of Leyte. Listed as the main event on the program aforementioned is the following: "Gene Espinosa vs. Paramount Beauty Shoppe." Well, sir, I thought this was a typographical error. However, reading further I saw that the name of the fighter really is Paramount Beauty Shoppe. I am writing to the sergeant for an explanation of this quaint name for a ringman.

If a man of 18 is old enough to be taken into the U. S. Army to fight for his country he certainly should be capable of deciding whether a nice little girl is the right little girl for him. However, in only four states is a man of 18 considered to have enough sense and judgment to marry without the permission of his papa and mamma. They are Idaho, Michigan, North Carolina and South Carolina. In all other states the bridegroom who marries without parental consent must be 21.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—The testimony of Elliott Roosevelt taken by the Treasury in the investigation of his borrowings is interesting reading.

In matters of big money his attitude is beautifully casual. Particulars escape him. Dates, too, elude him when they concern his financial dealings.

But he is as accurate as a timetable on many dates of his military service and his memory is firm about the telephone conversation between Franklin D. Roosevelt and John Hartford, whose loan of $200,000 was settled for $4000 by Jesse Jones.

Westbrook Pegler

Hartford testified that he felt that he had been earmarked by President Roosevelt for this touch; that he was "on the spot" and that the President gave him to believe that he would be morally responsible for a loan which he had verbally endorsed.

Elliott's memory has it that his father told Hartford only that he never interfered in Elliott's business affairs. He is absolutely certain on that.

WHEN HE was asked about $25,000 put up by Charles Harwood when Harwood was hopefully expecting a Presidential appointment to the Federal District or Appellate Court, Elliott replied: "I'm not sure today whether it is a loan or (stock) purchase."

Harwood's version is that the deal was a loan to Elliott's company for a two-year term; thereafter the stock was to be his. Following the loan, Mr. Roosevelt made him Governor of the Virgin Islands, not what he wanted at all.

And, although he was entitled to the collateral after the loan was defaulted, Harwood still tried to collect the money. Then, finally, when Jones offered him $500 for it, Harwood, suspecting the stock was coming back in value, refused to let go.

If it was a purchase, why did President Roosevelt leave the collateral back? Even if it was a loan, gone to default, why did he want Jones to get it back into the family's possession, unless the President, too, knew the stock was due for a rise which now has shoved it up above the price at which Harwood got it?

ELSEWHERE in the record it appears that this deal was effected by Elliott's uncle, Hall Roosevelt, brother of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. The company was up against it for a current payroll, and yet, according to Harwood, Hall spoke about the wonderful opportunity that he was offering him.

To proceed, however:

Q—Did your grandmother leave you any inheritance? A—Yes.

Q—How much was that? A—$19,000.

Q—in 1942, at the time you effected the settlement (of the loan debts), did you not know you were going to get this inheritance? A—No.

Q—You didn't list this as an asset? A I did not.

Elliott's grandmother, the late Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of his father, died Sept. 7, 1911. The will was probated in 1912. It was in 1942 that Jesse Jones, then head of the RFC and a member of the Roosevelt Cabinet, settled various debts for Elliott at the President's request.

Q—Did you receive any other gifts from relatives between 1934 and 1942? A—I received a gift from my brother (James).

Q—Do you recall the date? A—No.

Q—Do you recall the amount? A—Three or four thousand dollars. (A margin of uncertainty of either 33 1-3 per cent or 25 per cent.)

Q—At the time Mr. Jones negotiated the settlement of your indebtedness did you or your representative appraise him that you had an asset of $19,000 from an inheritance? A—I did not because I did not know that I had such inheritance.

ELLIOTT THEN said that "probably" he first learned that he was to get an inheritance in September, 1943, when his father told him his share would be about $10,000. He first learned that he was heir to $19,000 in April, 1943.

IN SCRUPULOUS FAIRNESS to Elliott it should be said here that he made one statement which apparently made a profound impression on the Treasury agents, for they gave it an entire separate page in the record.

It was that he had "every intention" to make payments to John Hartford and David G. Baird.

This "intention" seems to conflict, however, with a statement attributed to Elliott recently in California to the effect that they dealt themselves out when they elected not to sell him out of his assets following his plea of poverty.

Mobsters knocked down the unfortunate pair, Ernst insists.

"I AM SURE I know the gang who did the job," he writes . . . The lawyer-writer talks of clues such as a Steyer gun identified as the "star" pistol from which a fatal bullet was fired . . . It would be like proceeding against former President Lowell of Harvard, former Judge Thayer, the convicting jurist and former Gov. Fuller . . . WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—While in New York recently, I called upon an ex-coppe named William O'Dwyer who wishes to pound a new bar around City Hall, meaning he wants to be Mayor.

This eccentric fellow seemed quite happy about it too, although his campaign managers have warned him solemnly there is every chance he will win. I was conversing with this erstwhile flatfoot, using expressions like, "apprehended the accused," "taken into custody," and "held for a further hearing," so he would be able to understand me, when a tall, distinguished-looking party invaded the joint. The newcomer was identified as the Hon. James A. Farley.

This Farley, it developed, used to be Postmaster General back in the early days of Roosevelt and the Pony Express. He resigned because the internal combustion engine threatened to supplant the horse. He felt lost without the noble steed.

Old-timers may recall his postmastering if they think hard. I believe they even had a legend about him at the New York Post Office which went something like, "Neither snow nor rain nor heat nor dark of

In closing this chapter in Esquire (a spasm from an Ernst book called "The Best Is Yet"), the author asserts: "But I suggest that it would be dangerous for anyone to egg me on to take up the clues, no matter how stale. Truth can still out even if slapped down for several decades."

WE HOPE that Mr. Ernst would regard these few graphs as incentive for eggs him on . . . We would like to match the sources of information available to this department with any "wires" which the New York attorney may believe to be authentic on the subject of mob participation in the so-called Sacco-Vanzetti case . . . And we should like to wager that the "bad boy of the gang," so long unavailable to Mr. Ernst, can be invited to discuss the Sacco-Vanzetti case so that he will reply and that—if he is a bona-fide hoodlum of the early '20's he will accept a bid to talk.

night stays Farley from his appointed rounds.

The Hon. Farley seemed very tired. Mr. O'Dwyer inquired the cause.

"From pushing one of your infernal campaign limousines down Northern Boulevard, in Queens," replied the visitor.

IT DEVELOPED that Mr. Farley, together with Mr. Wayne Johnson, O'Dwyer's campaign director, and Mr. Bill Donoghue, his chief ballyho boy, had attended an O'Dwyer rally in Flushing High School. Word had gotten around—and I strongly suspect Mr. Donoghue, although he denied it—that Frank Sinatra, the eminent political orator and elder statesman, would be there, too.

The premises were so jammed with bobby-soxers that Mr. Farley and other speakers could barely wedge their way through. There was some talk of trying to appease the bobby-soxers by having Mr. Farley croon "Sunday—Monday— and Always," but it seems he had neglected to bring his swooning powders.

On the return journey, the rented limousine suddenly coughed like a Senator who has forgotten the point of his speech, and quit. The driver thought it might start again if given a push. So the Messrs. Farley, Johnson and Donoghue grunted, groaned and perspired the thing for a couple of blocks but it didn't so much as wheeze.

They were utterly spent when a jalopy pulled alongside and the driver gave Mr. Farley a jovial, "Hi, Buddy, need any help?"

"I told the jalopy-owner who Mr. Farley was," said Mr. Donoghue, "and he dern near making similar charges and accusing her husband of not providing for her and their son.

She was represented by the Legal Aid Society, which followed through until she won the divorce March 27, 1944. She was granted custody of the boy and $14 a week for support.

At the trial she told a story of abject misery. She said she had taken her son to live with her at a St. Botolph st. basement because her husband, long before estranged, had sent them only $5 a week. She told the court her clothes and those of the boy were "in rags."

"My boy's feet," she testified, "were practically crippled before his father brought him a new pair of shoes and then when he did buy them they were too small. As a result I had to take him to the Children's Hospital for treatment to his feet."

"My own shoes are so worn," she added, "that I have to wear rubbers over them all the time. My coat is nine years old. As a waiter, my husband eats at the hotel but we have to struggle along on $5 a week."

Earle had suffered pneumonia three times and had not had enough to eat, she told Judge Robert J. Wilson. The jurist observed:

"This boy here is half fed. His father has access to the hotel kitchen and probably fares better than the guests. It wouldn't take much argument for me to order $14 for support."

Oct. 31, 1941, Mrs. Apidianakis brought another petition in probate court. She asked for more support money. Judge John V. Mahoney heard the case March 28, 1945. He ruled that although the boy should remain with the mother, the father should have joint custody and should "super-vised the education, maintenance and medical attention" of his son. His support was left at $14 a week.

But Earle was to know still more of the unhappiness that came to a boy whose parents don't get along. May 28, 1945, his father brought another petition, this time charging the boy's mother had been keeping him from school. The father asked full custody.

While the case was still pending, the father entered another petition, asking temporary custody of the boy and moving that the $14 weekly support be reduced to $10 for his wife alone. He was willing his wife should have the boy one afternoon a week "for a reasonable time."

Mother, father, attorneys and a representative of the Legal Aid Society held a conference to work out Earle's fate. Mrs. Apidianakis agreed that pending a hearing on the last petition her husband could have temporary custody of their son.

It was the outcome of this hearing, due to be conducted this month, that the mother feared.

She was wearing a black dress, low black shoes, no stockings and a cerise coat with a black velvet collar. She carried black gloves and a black handbag.

According to her roommate she was a very likable girl but quiet and withdrawn, speaking little of herself, but intensely interested in dramatics.

"She has no relatives or close friends here and she is not very familiar with the city," Miss Mathis said.

College officials described her as an apt student with good marks.

Miss Haddix enrolled in the freshman class at Emerson this fall after attending the summer session as a special student.

Prior to coming here last summer, she had served six months with the Marines at Camp Lejeune, receiving an honorable discharge because, she told Miss Mathis, she was "physically unable to keep up with her duties."

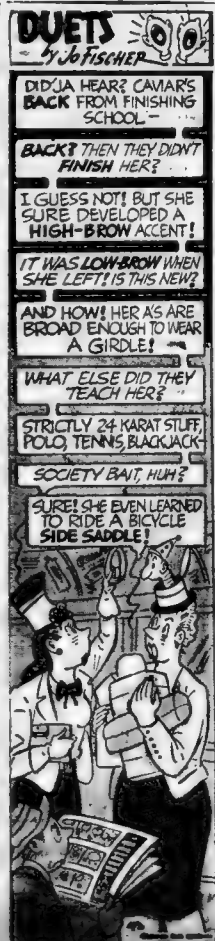

Weather Balks B-29 Record

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Air Force marked up today a second try victory for its B-29s over the mileage and adverse weather of the tough non-stop hop from Japan to Washington.

Four Superforts flew in to National Airport after a 6544-mile trip from Mizutani, on Hokkaido. The lead plane's time was 27 hours 29 minutes.

The 43 fliers succeeded in a task which defeated three other B-29s in the first attempt in September, but failed in a more ambitious plan to better the world distance record by having one of the planes go on to Cuba or Puerto Rico.

The flight leader was Brig. Gen. Frank A. Armstrong, Jr., of Richmond, Va.

25,000 at Purple Heart Shows

The Purple Heart Cavalcade, spearheaded by Benny Goodman and his famed sextet and augmented by star entertainers from theaters and night clubs, climaxed its four-day tour of military hospitals in this area with a smash-hit show and dance at Chelsea Naval Hospital.

During the four days it is estimated that the Cavalcade shows, sponsored by the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser Hospitalized Veterans' Fund, entertained more than 25,000 Purple Heart heroes at the Lovell General, Cushing General, Camp Edwards and Chelsea Naval Hospitals.

Commanding officers of the hospitals visited were emphatic today in their praise of the Hearst newspapers, for the splendid job done in bringing joy to the disabled and convalescent war heroes.

More than 2000 patients at the Chelsea Hospital, including battle-scarred veterans of the Pacific area, together with wives and sweethearts and hostesses from Boston, jived and jitterbugged to the music of the Goodman ensemble.

The reaction of Ens. Lawrence J. Stewart, welfare and recreation officer, was typical. "It's the best show we ever had put on here," he said enthusiastically.

The cavalcade arrived in the afternoon and was greeted by the hospital's commander, Capt. Frederick R. Hook with a luncheon. The musicians and performers then split up into two groups, roaming through the wards. Goodman brought with him Liza Morrow, vocalist, who headed one entertaining group while another included Tony Canzoneri, former boxing champion, Marc Plant, singer, and Joey Adams, comic, all from the Latin Quarter.

Other entertainers were Maria Lopez, from the Mayfair's singing cast, Carlos and Rena, dance team from the Latin Quarter and Mimi Walters from the Copley Plaza.

Q—I was recently discharged from the Army and am now interested in the educational clause under G. I. Bill. I have been told by other veterans that money spent by the government on my education will be deducted from any bonus that might be awarded later. Is this true? M. C. F., Arlington.

A—The G. I. Bill in its present form contains a clause which directs that any payments under the educational program shall be deducted in the event of a future "bonus." However, legislation is now before Congress which asks that this provision be stricken from the law under a recommendation of a Senate group.

Q—Would I be eligible for the state bonus under the following conditions: Enlisted in the WAVES and served four months. During boot training was given discharge under honorable conditions. Has State of Washington awarded a bonus as yet? R. M. Lynn.

A—May apply for Mass. State bonus. State of Washington has not acted on World War II bonus as yet.

Q—I am a veteran of World War II. Please give me information where I could purchase a jeep. H. M. Whitman.

A—If jeep is to be used for business purposes, application is made through Smaller War Plants Commission, 1 Court st., Boston. If solely for pleasure apply at Reconstruction Finance Corp. Offices, 10 Post Office sq. Be sure and bring discharge when making application.

Q—My brother has written that he is en route to the U. S. from the Pacific with the "A" Tih A. A. Bn. Can you tell me about when this outfit will land and where? I. L. Dorchester.

A—San Francisco. To give exact date it would be necessary to know name of ship.

Q—I enlisted in the Navy from Texas three years ago. Since I married a Boston girl and have made this my home. I intend to remain here after discharge. Will I be entitled to state bonus and benefits? G. W. J. Roxbury.

A—Not qualified to apply for state bonus because you were not resident of state at time of enlistment. For veteran benefits under state supervision, it is necessary to have been resident of state for five or more years.

Q—If I enlist in the Army now, how long do I sign up for? R. D., Cambridge.

A—A man now enlisting in the Regular Army may sign up for one year, 18 months, two years, or three years. A man enlisting for three years may choose the branch of service and the theater of operations in which he wishes to serve.

Q—My husband has been returned to this country and assigned to a camp here. He has 53 points. Can he be sent overseas against L. C. Norwich, Ct.

A—An enlisted man with over 36 points is not subject to overseas duty. The critical score for discharge of an enlisted man at the present time (Army) is 70 points.

"GREATEST FORD EVER BUILT"

Says Public from Coast to Coast!

"How Soon?" and "How Much?" Ask Throngs in Dealer Showrooms

On October 26 the new Fords for 1946 went on display in dealer showrooms the country over. In city after city, town after town, dealers reported that the crowds who came to view these fine new automobiles equalled those who greeted the introduction of the Ford Model "A" back in 1927—when total showroom attendance passed the 10,000,000 mark.

The opening day throngs were matched by those who came Saturday and later and their opinion has been unanimous. The words most frequently heard have been "the greatest Ford ever built". They backed up their acclaim with orders—326,840 on "V8 Day"—October 26 and Saturday, October 27.

This advertisement is published to record the deep gratification of the entire Ford organization at this splendid public reception . . . and to answer, as directly as we possibly can, the two questions most often asked.

"How soon can I get my new Ford?" We sincerely believe the answer is: "Sooner than you think"! And here's why—Ford, first with assembly line production of post-war cars, first to stock dealers for a nation-wide display, is first in quantity production—1000 units a day reached last week . . . 2000 a day in prospect within 30 days.

"How much will my new Ford cost?" We think the answer to this is found in Ford's unvarying policy through more than 40 years of operation: always the highest quality at the lowest possible cost.

To those who have not yet seen the new Fords: All our dealers have them on display. Please make it a point to see if you, too, don't agree that these are the "greatest Fords ever built."

Quick Mix Magic

By MARTHA LEE
Household Editor

YOU CAN TURN out so many treats with so little effort when you use a quick mix—it almost seems as if there must be magic in the mixes. But, of course, it's not really magic; it's just that someone has done half the work ahead of time, to spare you minutes when they are most precious.

You can work your own magic, too, simply by doing this advance preparation yourself. There are many types of dry mixes that you can make at home, utilizing those spare minutes when you're waiting for cookies to bake or for the family to finish the dishes.

These homemade mixes consist of dry ingredients, measured and sifted, and blended with lard or other fat. They may be kept in a covered container in the refrigerator over a period of time, and used at will. They enable you to turn out biscuits, muffins, corn bread, waffles, gingerbread, etc. in double-quick time—simply by adding the necessary liquids.

You've no idea what an inspiration it is to have one or two of these mixes on hand, when you're in a quandary as to what to have for dinner or lunch. And the family benefits, because they get delicious hot breads and other favorites more often than they would otherwise.

Take today's recipe for Homemade Corn Bread Mix, for example. How many times have you thought, when it came to getting dinner, "I wish I had mixed up some corn bread; it would go so well with this meat?" Hot corn bread does go well with ever so many dinner dishes—ham in any form, roast beef or pot roast, veal steak, pork chops or spare ribs, and many more. And that's not mentioning all the variations you can make, such as corn meal gems, corn meal waffles and corn meal short-cake to serve with creamed meat.

HOMEMADE CORN BREAD MIX

- 1 cup flour
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 cup sugar (optional)
- 3 cups corn meal
- 1/2 cup lard, drippings or other fat

Sift flour, measure and sift again with baking powder, salt and sugar. (Omit sugar if unsweetened corn bread is preferred.) Add corn meal. Cut in the fat until mixture is fine granules. Store in refrigerator. Under these conditions the mixture will keep at least a month.

Here is a tasty luncheon or supper menu:

MENU

- Individual Ham and Corn Bread Shortcakes
- Buttered Green Beans
- Tomato and Cauliflower Tossed Salad

French Dressing
Peanut Butter Cookies
Milk or Hot Tea

CORN BREAD

- 2 cups homemade corn bread mix
 - 1 cup milk
 - 1 egg, beaten
- Add milk and beaten egg to corn bread mix, stirring until mixed. Pour batter into a greased baking pan (6 x 10 inches) and bake in moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) for 25 to 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

CORN MEAL WAFFLES

- 2 cups homemade corn bread mix
 - 2 eggs
 - 2 tsp. lard
 - 1 cup milk
- Separate eggs. Beat egg whites until stiff. Add egg yolks, milk and melted lard to corn bread mix. Stir until evenly mixed. Fold beaten egg whites into batter. Pour into hot waffle iron and bake until brown and crisp.

Fashion

BRIEF formality and all-around interest are reflected in Hattie Carnegie's interpretation of the short black dinner dress... which this season has found such favor among the modishly dressed glamor-gals... and CBS Songstress Jeri Sullivan, in particular. For lush contrast... there's the lower pink shoulder ruffle which bears gold thread and jewel trim in oriental splendor and is lined with brilliant green. Across the back, the ruffles go smooth to swing loose over the figure-moulding bodice... R. M.

The Correct Thing

By ELINOR AMES

LIKE COMPLIMENTS? When someone says, "What a pretty dress!" it is impolite to deprecate it with "I hate this. I should throw it away!" or "This is an old rag!" Such remarks indicate the speaker is either lacking in taste or not fruitful. The gracious reply is "Thank you," or "I'm glad you like it."

Put Lipstick on With Brush for Glamor

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

DEEP BOWS and BOUQUETS are in order for young America... those trim, slim, pert, young maids who in a couple of years have tossed out sloppy clothes, the straggly hair, bobby socks and the careless make-up... to emerge the prettiest, well-dressed young ladies in town.

When mother was a girl, she was grown up when she put her hair up and her skirts down to her ankle. Today... it's when you wear lipstick. Busy young people... with never a dull moment when there is something worth doing... resent wasting time on non-essentials. That's why the younger crowd... bristling with activity and the urge to do something... have taken up the lip brush with overwhelming joy and satisfaction.

RICH AND SMOOTH

When they do something, they want to do it right. So they beautify their lips with a brush, color rich and smooth to transmit the same professional smoothness to their own. We grown-up babies might profit well by taking such a leaf from the beauty book of the junior misses... who seem to know all the answers when it comes to looking provocative.

They know that lipstick make-up done correctly before school in the morning... or before rushing for that train to the office or whatever their job... will save time... preserve a good appearance without make-over all day... and help avoid that splashy job which needs constant attention. Maybe that's why one cosmetic concern... whose lipsticks are honeys in themselves... urges and practically implores its clientele to learn to put lipstick on with a lipstick brush.

TAKES A LITTLE TIME

Maybe you'll find it a little difficult to work at first. But stick with it three or four days and you'll be an expert... you'll never apply your lipsticks in any other way. When you have learned the trick... the lips you put on in the morning will keep their neat outline all the day. Retouching after lunch... or after school... will be all that is necessary to keep them perfect. Thus you are sure of the right effect... and can avoid all that messy fussing in public.

Fill both sides of the lipstick brush with color from the lipstick. Draw a neat outline of the upper lip... then of the lower lip... then fill in, carrying the color carefully back into the corner of the mouth. And, the lipsticks featured by this house are super, too.

For the name of the lipbrush and lipstick for increased mouth beauty, phone the Beauty Dept., Liberty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HATS OFF to the young crowd who know how to look their best and hold the center of the stage... that "you can be better than you are" in appearance by learning a few lipstick tricks... such as never doing the kissables without a lipbrush... who never let the mouth get out of hand because it should "understudy" the eyes. Then, like Warner starlet Joan Leslie, you, too, can feel a song coming on.

He's 'Marital Blind Man'

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I've been married 10 years; am three years older than my husband, and neither one of us has been happy in the 10 years. He claims he loves me but has a funny way of showing it. We have two lovely children.

His job takes him out of town and he's away most of the time. When he does have a day off, he gives the car to his 18-year-old brother so he can go dancing, but he never thinks of showing me an occasional good time. I am at home all the time. When I'm sick it makes him angry, and he doesn't do a thing for me. He won't even do things around the house which are man's work, such as repairing the screen-door, fixing a leaky faucet, etc.

Do you suppose it's because I am older? But then he knew that when he married me. He loves the children very much. He wants me there to do the cooking, and if I ever mention leaving him, he makes desperate threats of violence. What do you think of such a man?

E. R.

Your husband comes under the heading of "marital blind man," a name one of my correspondents aptly called her husband who treated her much as yours does. It's a pity when a married man fails to realize that in accepting a wife as an unpaid servant instead of a companion, he, the home, the children lose all along the line.

A happy wife never counts the cost of doing all those things which pay rich matrimonial dividends. No, I don't think his neglect is due to the fact you're a little older. He's just selfish and too blind to see that he's working against his own advantage. It would be a great mistake for you to take any violent treatment from him. That sort of thing is fatal for children to see.

REPUBLICANS UNITED

FOR

KERRIGAN!

A committee of 1684 registered Republican voters have pledged* themselves to work for the re-election of John E. Kerrigan. We believe that through the work of this committee we can pledge to Mayor Kerrigan 45,000 Republican votes.

Mayor Kerrigan has over 60,000 pledged Democratic votes.

We can and must beat CURLEYISM!

We, the undersigned, representing the 1684 members of the committee, urge every Republican and Independent voter to join with us and not waste a single vote on minor candidates who can only hope to elect Curley by splitting the Republican strength.

USS Portland To Carry Troops

The cruiser Portland, whose gallant crew fought the Japs from Pearl Harbor down to final surrender, today is being reconverted at Charlestown Navy Yard. By Nov. 15 it will join the parade of ships ferrying boys home.

Built at Fore River in 1932, the Portland was en route to Pearl Harbor when the Japs struck. She was diverted before reaching the battle scene and immediately began the task of halting Jap fleet inroads into the Solomons.

Triple-deck bunks will be installed which will permit housing for 850 troops.

The crew of 1300 men and officers will be reduced to 435, under command of Capt. Lyman Thacker.

The Portland's record shows 15 major engagements, straight through from the Battle of the Coral Sea to Okinawa. She even participated in the big Jap surrender, for it was on her decks enemy admirals signed papers surrendering the Caroline Islands, and all Imperial Japanese based at the stronghold of Truk.

Hello, Give Me 14250, Please!

SALEM, Nov. 2—It isn't often a judge commits a man to jail—and then expresses hope the prisoner will be given adequate telephone service. But it happened here.

Albion N. Varney, 46, of School st., Lynn, had been haled before Judge Phelan in probate court by his divorced wife, Helen Varney, who said he was $14250 behind in his $750-a-week support.

Her attorney, John J. Foley, told the court he knew right well Varney could borrow up to $250 from his employer, the Lynn Gas & Electric Co.

Judge Phelan found Varney guilty of contempt and committed him to the county jail. The jurist added:

"I hope he will be given the facility of the telephone so he may make arrangements to pay the money in arrears."

Smart Set Childs Reunion in Lexington Home

By BETTY ALDEN

A SUCCESSION of informal parties has been taking place in Lexington to welcome members of the Edmund S. Childs family back to civilian life.

Their daughter Phyllis' husband, William Nye Swift, came home from Pearl Harbor on the Enterprise and no sooner arrived than he and Phyllis were lucky enough to find a home of their own in Lexington. They are busy decorating upstairs and down and preparing to move in before Mrs. Wm. Nye Bell returns to Harvard Law School. He was on active duty 35 months ending up as captain of a Navy mine sweeper.

The arrival of Richard Holmes Childs, who was a lieutenant in the Army Air Corps, was the signal for double celebrating since he brought his bride, the former Nancy Halligan of Lincoln, Neb. to whom he was married July 7 at Greenville, S. C. The new Mrs. Childs is the daughter of Mrs. Paul Rolf Halligan of Lincoln. Dick and his bride have also bought a house in Lexington.

Frederick Childs, a cousin of Phyllis and Dick, is out of the Navy and he and his wife, the former Nancy Delano of Waban, are staying with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Childs, until they find a house.

THE ENGAGEMENT of Diana Lynde Amory Sullivan, a debutante of last winter, to Charles Gilmore McKinney, USNR V-12, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Langdon Sullivan of Weston. Diana is a descendant of Gov. James Sullivan of Massachusetts and granddaughter of the late Col. Lynde

Sullivan, a president of the New Hampshire Society of the Cincinnati. He attended St. Catherine's School, graduated from Brimmer May and is now at Radcliffe. She belongs to the Vincent Club.

Mr. McKinney is the son of Capt. C. Gilmore McKinney, USNR, and Mrs. McKinney of Baltimore. He graduated from Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and before entering the V-12 unit at M. I. T. was a radoman 2-6 for two years.

BOSTON'S dachshunds will have their day tomorrow when the Bay Colony Dachshund Club holds its first specialty show at the Hotel Lenox in commemoration of the golden anniversary of the Dachshund Club of America.

Prominent dachshund fanciers offering prizes include Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Steward, Mrs. Franklin A. Reece, Jay Winthrop, Mr. and Mrs. Krug V. Nidda, Mrs. John Harvey, Mrs. Osborne Howes, Mr. and Mrs. Delphin Young and Mrs. Allen H. Wood, Jr.

MRS. SAMUEL ELIOT, Mrs. William R. Sears, Mrs. Eliot Hubbard, Jr., and Miss Margaret Sargent are among those planning to attend the first Foreign Policy Association luncheon of the season at the Copley Plaza tomorrow. The pros and cons of Japanese occupation will be discussed by experts in the fields of government and diplomacy.

AN OLD FASHIONED country breakfast complete with meat and potatoes, pickles and apple pie, will be served at the gay Gay Nineties party the Y.W.C.A. is giving Nov. 13 in honor of its friends and generous subscribers to the mortgage reduction fund. Hostesses, including Mrs. E. Granville Crabtree, president of the "Y," will be in costume.

Clare Luce Aks DAR Transfer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Rep. Clare Boothe Luce (R.) of Connecticut said today it would ask for transfer from the Putnam Hill chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, to the DAR group in Stafford. She had asked her chapter to censure the Washington group for refusing to allow Haze Scott, Negro pianist, to use Constitution Hall, owned by the DAR. Last night the chapter turned Mrs. Luce down, 48 to 2.

'This Love of Ours' Joins Films You Should See

By PEGGY DOYLE

Add to pictures worth seeing, Universal's distinguished production, "This Love of Ours," which presently brings the starring Merle Oberon, Charles Korvin and Claude Rains to Keith Memorial screen.

The film is based on Pirandello's "Come Prima Meglio De Prima," literally translated, "As Before, Better Than Before," an arrangement of words which may confuse you before seeing the picture.

"This Love of Ours" is a credit to one of Hollywood's most progressive and prosperous studios. Taste and dramatic awareness mark the production but, for all its high literary IQ, its outstanding entertainment values and heart-warming appeal are likely to show it to the top as everybody's picture.

Korvin is arresting as the pathologist who returns to his Pasadena home with Merle Oberon, whom

GI Mascot Arks

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2 (AP)—The War Shipping Administration is making it easy for veterans returning on WSA ships to bring pet home. Monkeys, honey bears and birds of the parrot family aren't admissible, but—

An animal-loving GI can bring home the inevitable dog, or: a giraffe, camel, ox, antelope, horse, deer, goat or sheep.

He introduces to his household, including his beloved young daughter, as a girl he met and married in Chicago.

Actually, he and Merle had married 12 years previously in Paris.

Her presence in the tawdry Chicago night-club, where she appeared as a piano accompanist, with an enormous popular caricature, played with ironic skill by Claude Rains, arouses bitter memories.

Fourteen-year-old Sue England, playing her first screen role as Miss Oberon's daughter, is beautifully, brilliantly right.

Woody Herman Jive Just Grand

Woody Herman and his band brought the hep-cats out in full force yesterday, when the swing king opened at the BKO-Boston.

Starting out with a pretty exciting arrangement of "Caledonia," the Herman band went on to an excellent medley including "Till the End of Time," "Along the Navajo Trail" and "Put the Ring On My Finger." From there on the audience was content just to hear them play more.

The stage show is adequate, although the band is rightfully predominant. Steve Connor does some snazzy and original dance numbers, and Frances Wayne sings a number of songs, among them "If I Loved You," the "Carousell" hit which is being done to death by soloists everywhere.

Rose and La Pierre offer some good comedy routines, and Chubb by Johnson pleases with his instrumental specialties. If you like jazz, this show is your dish.

On the screen is a pretty good whodunit in the Sherlock Holmes series, "The Sign of the Cross," with Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce.—M. X. S.

Shirley's 'Kiss and Tell' Tops

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

If we doddering oldsters hadn't already been numbed by the knowledge that Shirley Temple is old enough to be a married lady, it might be a shock to see Shirley grown up and having a screen romance; as it is, she is so young and innocent in "Kiss and Tell" that we still find it hard to picture her as a matron.

Columbia has done well by the successful stage comedy of Hugh Herbert's concerning the problems of adolescents and the headaches of their long-suffering parents.

Shirley plays the role of Corinne Archer, the teen-age known not only to the thousands who saw the play but also to the millions who listened to the radio. She is perfect in the role, much more Corinne than any of the heroines who portrayed her on the stage.

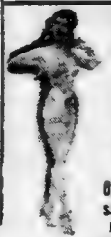

Jerome Courtland is properly gangling and young as Dexter Franklin, the boy next door who loves Corinne in his homey way and gets innocently suspected of things he never dreamed of. Walter Abel as Mr. Archer and Katherine Alexander as Mrs. A. are excellent as the harassed parents of this precocious 16-year-old.

It seems that Mildred Pringle, somewhat older than Corinne, has secretly married the Archer's son.

Robert Benchley, as always, is delightful as Uncle George, the wandering visitor. Mary Phillips and Tom Tully as the Pringles and Virginia Welles as Mildred are fine.

This Is My Story ★ ★ By Gen. Jonathan Wainwright

(Copyright, 1945, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction in Whole or in Part Strictly Prohibited.)

We waited three miserable days in our rooms at Manila's University Club, while the stubble came out on our chins and we were reduced to smoking cigaret butts down to the lip-burning state. The days of my early captivity in May of 1942 were ones of considerable worry. We were told, in effect, we were not prisoners of war; we were hostages held to insure the success of negotiations with forces in the south and in upper Luzon.

What I did not know at the time was that the Japs had informed our men on Corregidor—including officers who, against all laws of warfare, were paid to work cleaning up The Rock's debris—that if the troops in the south and north did not surrender I would be forced to witness the shooting of 10 American officers every day those troops held out.

But even without this knowledge, those first three days in Manila were times of great tension.

Then, on May 11, Col. Jesse T. Traywick returned from Mindanao, my chief source of worry. He reported that Maj. Gen. William F. Sharp had received my broadcast and had radioed Gen. MacArthur, as I hoped he would. MacArthur had replied, in effect, "Use your own judgment."

Sharp's judgment was the same as mine. He agreed to surrender. It was a great relief to find him accepting orders after I had released him.

On the same May 11, at night, we were joined at the University Club by Brig. Gen. Lewis Beebe, Maj. Bill Lawrence and Sgt. Hubert Carroll, who brought with them our clothes, toilet articles and other personal effects. It was a blessing to get into something clean, and to shave.

Bags Searched

But with the arrival of our baggage began a seemingly endless search of our ever-dwindling effects. The bags were opened in our rooms that night and systematically searched by a unit of Jap officers.

(In the 24th article of his dramatic story, told in detail for the first time, Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright relates the nerve-breaking delays in effecting the full surrender of his forces, and the loss of a good friend, Maj. Bill Lawrence.)

Out of my bag they took my tactical maps of North Luzon and Bataan, my field glasses, compass and a pair of wire cutters.

On the morning of May 12 the questioning began, questioning which was to continue almost without abatement until the day of my liberation.

At the very start of the questioning they wanted to know why nothing had been heard from Col. J. P. Horan and Guillermo Nakar. They were even more severe about the fact that some small detachments of Philippine army troops and some of the Constabulary were making a last-ditch stand on the island of Palawan and in the Bicol peninsula. They reminded me again that I would not be recognized as a prisoner of war until all opposition had ceased.

I told them I would do what I could, and asked them to send to Camp O'Donnell and release Gen. Francisco and Lt. Silhavy, a Philippine army engineer who had served in the Bicol peninsula. I told the Japs that I would give instructions to these two Philippine officers and send them to Legaspi and Palawan to speak to the holdouts. With them, I promised, I would send Col. Johnny Pugh, my aide.

Francisco and Silhavy, much the worse for wear, were brought to my quarters in the University Club and in whispers told me what they knew of the Bataan Death March, a story which made me sick to hear.

Surrender Envoys

Yet I knew that the Japs were capable of staging other Death Marches, and would do so unless all organized resistance ceased. So I quickly sent Francisco, Silhavy and Pugh to Legaspi, with instructions similar to the ones I sent to Sharp, Nakar and Horan.

They went armed with many printed copies of this order, along with a shorter one signed by Francisco, reading:

"To any Constabulary officer: 'The undersigned Chief of Constabulary upon instructions from Lt. Gen. J. M. Wainwright, U. S. A., senior American officer in the Philippines, is now in Legaspi to transmit to you an order of surrender to take effect immediately.

"The safety of your fellow-countrymen will be jeopardized if you do not carry out these instructions.

"Your representative will be protected by the Japanese Army. Send him under a flag of truce and there will be no danger to his person."

The constables on Palawan surrendered without trouble, and the situation around Legaspi soon cleared. But Sharp's order of May 10 to five Filipino sector commanders on Negros were rejected. They enlisted the sympathetic support of civil authorities and of many civilians, and announced they did not intend to surrender.

The Negros force was perhaps the least trained of all those under my command, and so badly equipped that the men had only enough ammunition for 20 minutes of sustained firing. Col. Roger Hilsman, commanding officer of the Negros section, was hooted and threatened when he presented Gen. Sharp's order to cease firing.

Risked His Life

At the risk of his life he went into the mountains in search of the mutinous leaders, who had threatened to kill any American attempting to communicate with them. When these expeditions failed he twice talked the ranking Japanese officer on the island into extending the time by which the surrender must be effected.

These extensions were all the more remarkable because three Filipino envoys—a Col. Valariano and his two aides—were murdered by a demented Filipino soldier as they advanced under a flag of truce.

The mutineers also held 196 Jap internees and threatened constantly to put them all to death if we continued our efforts to persuade them to surrender. During that awful period, I momentarily expected Jap guns would be turned on the unarmed thousands on Corregidor. And, as I said earlier, I did not know how close I was to being required to witness the murder of 10 of my officers each day the mutineers held out.

In the meantime, Col. N. C. Galbraith, in search of Col. Horan, walked for days through the mountain fastness of North Luzon without locating the hideout of the American leader.

To strike new dismay upon us in those early days of our captivity, we lost the cheering comfort and plucky example of Maj. Lawrence.

On May 13, two days after his arrival with Beebe and Carroll from Corregidor with our effects, Lawrence was laid low with a high fever. He had been sick upon his arrival from The Rock, but we did not consider his condition dangerous until the following day.

On the morning of May 12, when Lawrence's fever rose, I sent word to the commander of the University Club billet that we were in immediate need of a doctor. But it was late that evening before a Jap army doctor sauntered in. He gave Lawrence a cursory inspection and left.

With Lawrence delirious, we tried all during the day of May 13 to get the doctor back. But our increasingly desperate pleas were ignored until 7 p. m. when another doctor arrived. He made the briefest possible inspection of Lawrence, then muttered:

"Pneumonia. Both lungs." He shook his head.

Death of Lawrence

I begged him to get Lawrence to a hospital, and after a period of maddening deliberation he consented. Lawrence was taken away about 8 o'clock, and I sent Sgt. Carroll along to look out for him.

Just at midnight, Carroll returned. His face told the story.

"He died at 11 o'clock," he told us, while we shook with mingled rage and sorrow.

I got up early the next morning with a fear that the Japs might cremate the body, as is their custom. Lawrence was a Roman Catholic and traditionally opposed to cremation. I asked for an audience with the ranking Jap officer and pleaded with him to see to it that Lawrence's body was not cremated.

But he laughed at me and told me it would be done. He added, however, that if I cared to bury Lawrence's remains in the military cemetery at Fort McKinley, my old post just outside Manila, it could be arranged.

So I got permission for Johnny Pugh to scout Manila for a priest and to explain the circumstances.

Pugh returned with the priest late in the day and about 6 o'clock our little group went to the hospital, under heavy guard, claimed poor Bill's remains and were driven to Fort McKinley.

It looked bleak and barren. It hurt to see the Rising Sun fluttering from the same pole where I had staged so many ceremonies under our own flag. The place was jammed with Jap troops. The cemetery, once neat and well ordered, was forlornly unkempt. The Japs had dug a great, long community grave, like a common pit, and had filled half of it with dead Americans and Filipinos—buried without identification.

We chose a spot for the urn that held our dear friend. Sgt. Carroll dug his little grave and fashioned a white cross, while I made a sketch of its location for Bill's wife. The priest, who shrugged sadly and said that this was war, read the full burial service over the ashes and we said our own little prayers until we were prodded in the backs and told it was time for us to return to our quarters.

(TOMORROW: The Japs question Wainwright about the $15,000,000 he hid, and he sees a tragic parade beneath his windows.)

Sports Brainstorms, or, Phenomenon of K. O.

By AUSTEN LAKE

FUNNY HOW SMALL MATTERS start the Vox Pops writing. For example Com. Gene Tunney, the cultured ex-pug, millionaire and member of suburban nobility, wrote a mag-articles rather day referring to a knockout as a "pin-point hemorrhage." So an Army brain specialist writes in to correct Gene's vulgar idiom and say the proper medical term for a Kay-O is "commotio cerebri," or a commotion of the cerebral centers by sudden impact of a blow.

Imagine the guys in the back room saying how Joe Glug lost in the sixth by a "commotio cerebri."

My correspondent states that medical science does not yet understand the reasons for the various phenomena which take place during a knockout and cites many cases during this war when bomber pilots, experiencing concussion from ack-ack or wounds, flew their ships for hours, arrived precisely over the target, flew safely home and remembered nothing about it.

The writer recalls a staff sergeant named Al Kephner, a tank commander of the Fourth Armor, who batted his skull against a turret-hatch in the fight for Gotha and thereafter directed his gunner, knocked out an "88," and won himself a silver star. He claimed afterward he got the medal under false pretenses because he hadn't any recollection of the action.

Kayosed by French Barn

"IT CAN HAPPEN," writes the brain expert, "that a sharp blow might stun the higher centers of intelligence, the region which controls conscious action (cerebral cortex) and not affect the lower centers which control reflexes of the sub-conscious (basal ganglia). If the blow is violent enough it might stun both higher and lower centers and bring a total blackout."

Thank heaven for the Army's steel helmets, those inverted bird-baths that we wore in the combat areas! The writer got conked on his steel-shielded noggin Sept. 5, 1942, by a bulldozer that fell from a French stone barn. Bob Cronie of the Chicago Tribune and I had sought shelter behind a ruined grange during some small arms action in a ravine beyond Verdun. Somehow a heavy stone fell and struck squarely on the crown of my metal derby. The result was "total mental eclipse" for some minutes, a dreamless void until consciousness dawned again through a swirl of gray vapor and with a metallic bumping in my ears. It was a topsyturvy world in which the faces of several GIs swam around, as though I had fallen down a well and they were bending over the rim to look at me.

I suppose any army correspondent would say I had stunned both my cerebral cortex and basal ganglia. To me it was like getting kicked square on the squash by a cow.

I HAVE HEARD Benny Leonard, the old lightweight wizard, tell how Baby Face Jim McLarnin caught him on the side of the head with a salvage hook. It produced a momentary dizziness, said Benny, not unlike a dentist's injection of novocain in the gums, and after that a succession of odors. "First it smelled like burning horse-hoofs," said Benny, "a revolting stench which gradually changed to a sweetish geranium scent, which suited me better."

Possibly the sock jolted Benny's olfactory nerves and induced false sensations to fly between his brain and nose. Like that time several seasons since, when a Georgetown football back struck the writer, the game umpire, with his leather shoulder pads. My neck felt like it had come unlinked and the taste that lingered in my throat for days was "like chewing a freight-handler's glove."

I know there is a definite taste to fear! I've tasted it many times during the 3rd Army's campaign through France and Germany. Many soldiers told me they tasted it too! It's a copperish, electric-prickled flavor like you gargled fluid from a live auto battery. The sensation is like swallowing a fur hat. And how does Com. Tunney explain that?

From Burglar Alarm To Cricket Chirp

THERE WAS THE OCCASION TOO when Ed Don George, the pre-war wrestler, struck his pot on the edge of a Braves Field ring during a bout with Danno O'Mahoney and told me how for weeks a succession of burglar alarms and church chimes had changed in his skull 'til gradually they dimmed down to telephone tinklings and sleighbell jangles and finally to a cricket chirp. He said it was weeks before that cricket gave its final rasp.

One assumes that here was a case where George injured his auditory nerves causing the region of intellect which governs sound to be short-circuited, just as sometimes a sharp blow affects the optical centers and produces a flash of incandescent light. Everybody, at one time or 'nother, has seen stars. Mickey Cochrane, after his almost fatal beating, said that for months afterward he saw sudden fiery pinwheel displays and explosions of rockets.

AS ANOTHER PHASE of the knockout phenomenon, Jack Sharkey tells how, when he was blasted off his championship pinnacle by Primo Carnera it was not an obliterating, soul-shocking sock, but something that felt like a nudge received during a subway jam, and to his astonishment he was falling backward off the ropes and thence to the floor. And he said, although he could hear and see the referee tolling the count, there was no volition 'twixt brain and muscle. His mind shouted commands to his brain, "Get up!" But he couldn't twiddle a finger.

Sport's little museum is full of such curios. Like the time Eddie Shore collided with a Maple Leaf forward and saw the rest of the game as through a heavy snowstorm. And when Sharkey got clumped on the button by Kingfish Levinsky and thought the taxi driver who was taking him back to his hotel had forgotten the direction of the Chicago Coliseum, where he had already lost a fight of which he had no recollection.

How would Com. Tunney, the eminent pin-point hemorrhage scientist, explain that to his knockout clinic?

Navy-Irish Grid Tossup Tops Weekend Program

Both unbeaten and untied, Navy and Notre Dame clash tomorrow at Cleveland in the top college football game of the day before a sellout crowd of 80,000. The Middies, reported inspired by their last-minute victory over Pennsylvania last week, will try to repeat their crushing 32 to 13 triumph over the Irish a year ago, according to the Associated Press. Among the betting boys the game is regarded as a tossup, although the Middies have merely muddled through most of their games while the Irish were given trouble only by Illinois. For a comparison Notre Dame licked Georgia Tech, 40 to 7, while Navy dumped Tech by 20 to 6.

One of the spectators will be Army Coach Earl Blaik, who is killing two birds with one stone by taking in the fray. Army, ranked as the best team in the country, meets the Irish next week in New York and plays Navy in the season's grand finale at Philadelphia on Dec. 1.

Blaik, along with everyone else, apparently believes that his powerful Cadet eleven, unbeaten in 11 straight games, will not be unduly extended by Villanova and that it is safe for him to scout personally the Middies and the Irish.

Two other games high in national interest will be played in the mid-West. Minnesota and Michigan tangle in their little brown jug battle before 85,000 at Ann Arbor, while at Columbus 74,000 will watch Ohio State's Buckeyes take on Northwestern, the team that upset Purdue.

Out at Los Angeles another 80,000 turnout is expected to watch the unbeaten and upset St. Mary's Gaels try to crush Southwestern California, upset last week by Washington.

In the Pacific Northwest Washington, now favored for a Rose Bowl bid, may encounter trouble with Oregon. Texas, upset last week by Rice, will try to oust Southern Methodist from first place in the Southwest conference.

The standstill game in the South Colorado and New Mexico meet as Alabama's mighty Crimson tide is favored to have it comparatively easy against Kentucky. Colorado and New Mexico meet in the Rocky Mountain area feature and in the Big Six territory. Oklahoma entertains Texas Christian.

The Cornell-Columbia game in New York headlines an attractive eastern card that also pits Princeton against Syracuse; Yale against Dartmouth and Temple against Lafayette.

Pics Make Bow Against Rovers

With three weeks of intensive training behind them, the Boston Olympics are in top shape for their opening Eastern Amateur Hockey League games against New York Rovers at the Garden tonight and Saturday night.

For the Pics this evening's engagement will mark the start of their defense of the Eastern League championship, which they have held the past two seasons and for which they are again regarded as favorites.

The squad has youth and speed among the forwards, and size and experience behind the blue line, and despite the fact that Rovers claim they have their best club since the days of the Colvilles and Alex Shubicky, the Pics expect to do well.

Sport Licenses Here May Reach 400,000

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH
FORMER INSTRUCTOR OF ARMY SKI TROOPS

"There are now more than 215,000 licensed hunters and fishermen in Massachusetts, but when another year rolls around, this number will have increased to about 400,000—the added influx coming from ex-servicemen," declared James F. Power, new director of the Mass. Fish and Game Division, in a chat with this writer. . . . Thus was our prediction that the ranks of outdoorsmen would double, substantiated.

We also learned that numerous vets have applied for jobs as wardens, conservation workers, and the like. . . . "Unfortunately, there are not any openings at present," stated Mr. Power, "but if the Fish and Game budget is increased, more jobs in the department will then be provided. I plan to step up the number of wardens from 32 to 50, while many more could be utilized to good advantage."

A splendid idea! . . . We know that thousands of G.S.s were interested in breaking into the important work of conservation. Many of our former acquaintances had studied forestry projects, wildlife care and propagation, and hoped to obtain positions in these lines upon being discharged. . . . It would be highly commendable to the Fish and Game Division if some of these jobs could be provided.

POWER IS ON THE BALL

A busy man, indeed, is stocky, ruddy-faced Director Power, who took over the office in June; he spends three-quarters of his time in the field and at the hatcheries, in addition to visiting various rod and gun clubs on an average of three nights a week, seeking the co-operation of the sportsmen and the consensus of their opinions. He believes that he can't "accomplish much at his desk!"

Richard Faces Rough Ice Path

By BILL GRIMES

During an exhibition game in Ottawa, Maurice Richard, who established an all-time record by scoring 50 goals last season, took exception to the body checking of "Butch" Stahan, who was trying to catch a defense berth with Les Canadiens, and started a fist fight.

And the following night, in another exhibition game, at Montreal, the fiery Richard took on Mike McMahon after Wide Mike crashed into him.

In fairness to Stahan and McMahon, the fact should be stressed that they were both trying to make a favorable impression with Coach Dick Irvin. Naturally, Richard had his job clinched.

After the fights, Stahan and McMahon "blew their tops." Said Stahan, "If that guy wants to play like that, he'll be lucky to score 10 goals in the N. H. L. this season. He wants to cry, if you want him a little rough. He can't take it."

When he reached the penalty box after his fight with Richard, McMahon asked Elmer Ferguson, the veteran hockey writer: "How much is the advertising space rate in your paper? I want to advertise that I'm going to run that Richard out of the league before the end of the season."

Coach Dick Irvin, who will turn his Flying Frenchmen loose against the Bruins Sunday night at the Garden, is a canny Scot. Years before he accepted the coaching berth with Les Canadiens, he knew all about the feuding between the French and English players.

There have always been French and English cliques, with mutual antagonism, on Les Canadiens clubs. And, like the non-French baseball players with the Royals, the non-French hockey players resent the attitude, which is hostile, particularly if the club is in a losing streak, of the Montreal fans and press.

Years ago, the late Howie Morenz and Pit Lepine feuded bitterly. Morenz was of Swiss descent. Lepine was a Frenchman. They were both center icemen. Lepine was a great hockey player. But, he wasn't in Morenz' class in the judgement of any unbiased judge. The French press played up Lepine. The French fans fell into line. Even the untiring efforts of such proven diplomats as Leo Dandurand and the late Cecil Hart couldn't get Morenz and Lepine to smoke the pipe of peace.

One of the causes for the development of radical prejudice among Les Canadiens players was that the Frenchmen were quartered in one section of the club's dressing room and the non-French in another. And, the fact that the French insisted upon conversing in their native tongue didn't help matters.

Champion Tigers Cut $199,743

CHICAGO, Nov. 2 (AP)—The winning Detroit Tigers and losing Chicago Cubs got $199,743 and $133,162, respectively, from the record $1,592,454 receipts in the 1945 World Series.

Full shares to 26 Tigers were each worth $6443.34, while the Cubs split their swag into 31 full shares of $3930.21. The Tigers also voted seven half-shares and the Cubs gave three half portions. Both clubs also gave smaller amounts to personnel.

Malden to Give Brockton Test

Schoolboy football fanatics will be bulging the barriers of the Pearl st. stadium tomorrow afternoon to find out if it's true what they say about Brockton High School's gridder, who will be tangling with Malden in their second invasion of the Greater Boston ranks.

That's the feature of the Saturday program as the teams swing into their first date of their final month of competition. This is possibly the best team in Brockton history, as Malden's state title bidders will find out.

The Golden Tornado hasn't been beaten in this state although it did drop a slim opener to Nashua. Since Coach Eddie Melanson's boys have tied Melrose and last week, they tagged a 2-0 defeat on Arlington. Co-Capt. Dick Verrengia, defensively, and John Carroll (offensively) will bear watching.

Everett learned a lesson last week against Medford (7-6) so that Coach Dennis Gildea should have his Crimson Tide on edge for the clash at Waltham.

Undefeated Reading's invasion of Winchester will find Capt. San Tibaud availing Coach Al Kent's crew with open arms. Although kayoed from the unbeaten ranks last week, Winchester has taken on new life with the return of back Tibaud from the U. S. Navy. He'll probably be ready to start.

There'll be plenty of other thrillers, starting off with Marblehead's invasion of Lynn English tonight at Manning Bowl, Lynn. There'll be Belmont at Brookline; Arlington at Weymouth; Saugus at Lynn Classical tomorrow night; Salem at Gloucester and Somerville at Malden Catholic, just to name a few.

It seems that there's not too much to worry about the Wakefield offense, especially with a handy guy like Henry "Pokie" Rich whipping his 175-pounds around the gridiron. Rich, a junior, does everything well from the fullback berth.

Rich works in that backfield with Billy Healey, 165, son of the Peabody High ass't coach; Joe Colucello, 145-pound 3-year veteran, and John "Tuffy" Roberto, 147-pound letterman.

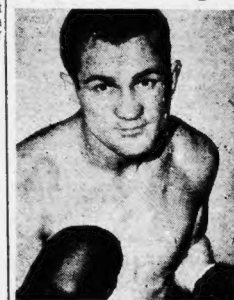

It's surprising but Tim Roberto, captain and Tuffy's brother, is the mainstay of the line in spite of the fact that he tosses only 138 pounds at the opposition.

The Wakefield captain and Don Ratcliffe, 195-pound veteran, will be surrounding center Henry "Gabby" Morgan, 187-pound letterman. Art Cavanaugh, 165-pound letterman, and Art Loughlin, 190 and a veteran, will be at the tackles with Chet Pawlowski, 158, and Burr Mosher, 155, on the end. Mosher came out for foot ball for the first time this fall and he's worked nicely into the line-up.

Other Wakefield players who are pushing the first stringers include: ends—Bud Dow, Sam, and so, Reggie Sardella; tackles—Benny Barsanti, brother of Nandy, John Hickey, Larry Ross, Pete Leone; guards—Dick Crittenden, Dave Jackson; center—Ted Fritz; backs—Dick Muise, Les DeMarco, Frank Nardone, Billy DeRoche, Owen Huff and Jim Cone.

MULLOY NEAR DISCHARGE
MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 2 (AP)—Lt. Conn. Gardnar Mulloy, former nationally ranked tennis player, expects to receive his Navy discharge about Dec. 1.

Zivic-Archer Bout On WCOP Tonight

Former champion Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh, who knows every trick of the fistic trade, meets rough-and-ready Freddie Archer of Newark, N. J., in a ten-round welterweight return match at New York tonight.

Young Archer packs grenades in both mitts and is murderous in the clinches. He defeated Zivic in their first meeting. Fritzie wants a return title bout with Freddie "Red" Cochrane and the outcome of this match may strengthen his claim.

Enjoy the excitement, blow-by-blow, on Gillette's Cavalcade of Sports over American Broadcasting Co. and WCOP (1150 on your dial) at 10 p. m.

For thoroughly refreshing shaves, soften your beard with Gillette Shaving Cream, lather or brushless, then skim it off—slick as satin, with today's Gillette Blue Blade in your Gillette Razor. Remember LOOK sharp! BE sharp! Use Gillette Blue Blades with the sharpest edges ever honed!

Six-Gun

Turning his home into a fort, Frank U. Graham, 77, of Berlin, N. J., takes out his six-shooter to guard against eviction ordered by city officials. The house was sold a few weeks ago, and Graham, who hasn't paid taxes on it since 1933, refuses to move.

Remaking

Being converted into a troop transport at the Charlestown Navy Yard, the cruiser Portland winds up a career as one of the most gallant fighting ships in the U. S. Navy.
